2,900

"Times, of Course"

That's what all the newsboys say when asked which Barre paper sells the best. There is no doubt about it.

The army and the navy of the United States meet in battle today—on the gridiron.

There were 75 marriages in Lynn, Mass., Thanksgiving day. Let us give thanks.

The crank who presented President Roosevelt a package of "medicated" charcoal should have daubed some of it on his own face and have gone on the comedy stage, instead.

Like the man who will not insure his property, the town that will not furnish fire protection is almost sure to reap the results of its laxity. The town of West Rutland which lost $75,000 Thursday evening is the latest victim. Here there was no fire fighting apparatus and no public supply of water. Result, the village burned until the fire practically burned itself out and the business section was in ruins.

Collins' History of Vermont says: "Within comparatively few years Barre has grown from a little village into a granite city," and yet Barre people are kicking because no mention was made of their leading industry. Either somebody did not read the book carefully or is incapable of understanding accurate and concise English.—Lyndonville Journal.

That's not the sentence over which the "kick" is made. If you have read the book you will notice that in summing up the granite industry of the state Barre is entirely left out. That is what Barre people object to. The cursory allusion to Barre's being transformed into a "granite city" might mean many things, and it does not give the reader a concise idea, in however "accurate and concise English" it may be couched. We have no desire to be fault-finding in regard to Collins' history of Vermont but we do believe there is a chance for more specific assertions in relation to the granite industry of the state.

Those state contemporaries that have been finding fault because the football team of the University of Vermont has not been more successful in winning games this fall, are reminded that it is not all of sport to win. If it were, then the contemporaries might advise such teams as those of Tufts, Brown and Cornell to suspend operations and play marbles. But there is something besides mere winning as those colleges know, although it probably is depressing to pass through a uniformly poor season. But that is no reason for cutting out the game of football. Each team has its period of low tide in athletics, but there can be a change for the better. And the only way to bring about the change is to keep plugging away. As the contemporaries probably know, football is not a game in which a college can go for years without a team and then jump into prominence in one, two or three years. It is the steady, grinding process which enables a college to have a winner on the gridiron, and the surest way to develop a winner is to go up against teams of better calibre. We believe that there is no honor lost in dropping games to teams which represent larger institutions.

Always a rush to tell about the winning side—football or fashions.

Three Million Dollar Company Fails.
San Juan, Porto Rico, Nov. 27.—It is announced that the San Juan office of the Vandegrift Construction company, interested in a $3,000,000 trolley scheme, has been closed for nonpayment of rent and owing to attachments for salaries in behalf of many engineers, other employees and business creditors. The company was under $100,000 bond. The explanation given for the closing is the recent stringency in money in the United States, which prevented the company from floating its bonds.

Cedric Sighted.
New York, Nov. 27.—The White Star line steamer Cedric has passed Nantucket lightship. This finally disposes of the rumor that she was run down in midocean.

ABOUT THE STATE.

Items of Interest Gleaned From Our Exchanges.

Miss Lillian B. Goff, 22 years old, a stenographer in one of the offices of the Boston Note Brokerage Co., who was brutally assaulted by a man Wednesday, was formerly a Burlington girl.

Dan Wiley, a farm hand employed by Wilder Radium in Guilford, was seriously injured in a runaway Tuesday afternoon. He was riding on a load of wood when his horse took fright and the load was thrown upon Mr. Wiley, breaking his leg and otherwise injuring him.

E. N. Carter, superintendent at the fish hatchery at St. Johnsbury, will start a new magazine about January first. The publication will be a monthly one and is to be known as the American Fish Culturist. It is primarily intended for all persons interested in the rearing of fish.

Some distinguished visitors are going to Burlington on the occasion of the annual meeting of the Vermont Dairymen's association, January 5, 6 and 7. Ex-Gov. Board of Wisconsin, one of the high authorities on dairy products, H. C. Adams, member of Congress from the 2nd Wisconsin district, several speakers from New York state and a number of noted speakers from the University of Vermont are on the programme. The Vermont State Dairymen's association is the largest organization of the kind in the United States.

The Montpelier water system is out of debt and is earning money so that the city council is now looking around to invest it. Under a vote passed at the annual March meeting the income of the water department must be paid into a sinking fund to reduce the bonded indebtedness of the city and not to pay current city expenses. Accordingly the council finds itself with $15,000 water money drawing only 2 per cent. interest in the banks. In accordance with the above vote, the council has decided to invest the money in retiring $15,000 street improvement bonds issued about six years ago, and which gave Montpelier its first start in macadamized roads. Instead of the city paying 4 per cent. to the bondholders it will pay the interest charges to the sinking fund. In this way it will be only a matter of only a few years before the city will be entirely free from debt. The city owns a water system worth a quarter of a million, but which could not be bought for four times that sum.

JINGLES AND JESTS.

De Witt of Princeton.
Out of the chaos of travelling limbs riseth the fame of De Witt:
Tall and steady and strong of soul,
Quick and ready, he made the goal.
Carve him high on the shining roll—
Captain of Princeton and master of grit!

Dauntless the heroes whose muscles tense
battled the band of De Witt;
Swift to hustle the flag of blue,
Strong in tangle and crafty, too.
Then to whom is the slaughter due?
De Witt, the captain, the master of grit!
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Offer.
Brown—That man is a great wrestler. He offers $100 to any man who can throw him.
Jones—That's a standing offer, then, I suppose.—Yonkers Herald.

Looking Forward.
I almost hate
My sister Kate's
Blue eyes and curling tresses.
As time goes by
I know that I
Must grow to wear her dresses.
—New York Times.

The Best.
Van Quixote—Are you on good terms with your wife's relatives?
Fitz-Bile—The best in the world. I don't know them.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Lazy Season.
The book of nature I would read
And get a lesson from each tree.
I always wait, however, till
Kind autumn turns the leaves for me.
—Judge.

Quite of Her Opinion.
Gushing Young Woman (to famous actor)—Oh, do you know, Mr. Starleigh, I'm simply mad to go on the stage!
Famous Actor—Yes, I should think you would be, my dear young lady!

The Ideal Stadium.
[The Stadium undoubtedly lacks a certain indefinable something, a certain je ne sais quel.—Harvard Monthly For October.]

When Eben bucks the center
For gains of many a yard,
When Mastertink plays tackle
And Brownin's ghost plays bard,
When soulful saxes are punctured
And frenzied noddies jarred,

When Sudermans in crimson
Upset Sardous in blue,
When wild, ecstatic plunges
The field with wounded stew,
When Tolstoi's "Resurrection"
Is read to bring men to,

When Arthur Wing Pinero
Is coaching all the pack,
When problem plays are taking
The place of tackles back,
When Harvard Shaw is pointing
Beyond the cinder track,

When crowds await D'Annunzio's
(The referee's) command,
When corky leads the cheering
And Richard Strauss the band—
Ah, then the Harvard Monthly
Will think the Stadium grand!
—Harvard Lampoon.

Equal Distribution of Space!

Now Listen to This!

A perfect Shoe should contain not a single particle of space more than necessary, otherwise the Shoe becomes large and ungainly. The Dorothy Dodd Shoe leaves more space for the foot than any other Shoe we know of, yet the Shoe itself is absolutely smaller than the ordinary Shoe. That is because it equally distributes space.
